MUST THE OFFICE GO?

If the suit to annul Dairy and Food Commissioner Warren's office succeeds it will be about the severest blow our State Constitution has yet received. It will be the same as a judgment that this State has no power to enact a pure food law and enforce it through a State officer. The purity of food cannot be ascertained except by inspection, and when that is insufficient by chemical analysis, and the contention is that an office which involves the inspection of food is unconstitutional,

The Constitution forbids the appointment of a State officer to inspect food. The invasion of stores, warehouses and manufacturing establishments by a State officer commissioned to inspect had proved a disagreeable experience and was here guarded against. But the pure food law contemplates something very different. The store, warehouse and factory are not invaded. Their products are purchased in the course of daily business, and after they are the property of the purchaser these products are inspected to see whether or not they are poisonous. This is the State police power, and the constitutional convention did not have in view any limitation of such wholesome exercise of authority.

But Constitutions are stiff propositions, and the framers of the Pennsylvania Constitution of 1874 in a good many respects builded worse than they knew. Possibly in hitting at one institution which they disliked they have struck down another whose existence and desirability they did not at the time forsee. The Attorney General has very properly consented to have the suit brought in the name of the Commonwealth, for it is a question altogether for the Supreme Court to decide, and it ought to be settled as soon as practicable.

STATE GETS ITS MONEY BACK.

This a great and fortunate Commonwealth. Governor Pennypacker was able to make the official announcement that the whole amount of State money in the Enterprise Bank at the time of it's failure has been recovered, with interest, and paid into the State Treasury.

Though not stated, this money has undoubtedly been paid over by the sureties on the bonds given the State at the time the money was deposited, as required under the act of 1897.

The Governor also announced that recently the United States Government paid over to the State $236,762 65 on account of money loaned at the time of the War of 1812. This has been a long while coming, and there have been many times in the past ninety-four years when the Commonwealth was much more in need of it than it is now.

The general business conditions have their effect on the Treasury. It is flush now because we have had a number of prosperous years. The balances do not materially decrease in spite of large payments on unusual account. These balances are too large, and have been in the past a temptation which has been well understood, though there is less danger of anything of the kind in the future. It is very certain that the next Legislature will considerably add to the amounts now diverted to the local treasury.

VESUVIUS.

It is now more than eighteen hundred years since Pliny the Elder was stifled in the catastrophe in which Pompeii and Herculaneum were buried beneath the lava and ashes of Mt. Vesuvius. Of the fearful devastation and despair that have now overtaken the surviving cities the telegraph is daily sending forth more vivid descriptions than the account of Pliny the Younger to the historian Tacitus. Yet in all this lapse of time, in which humanity has been wrestling with the hostile forces of Nature with more or less success, no provision has been made, if it could be made, against the long menaced destruction.

Just lately the sun shone down on the pleasant Campagna and its villages as it did the day before Pompeii and Herculaneum were imbedded beneath the vomitings of Vesuvius. As before, men and women went about their pursuits and their pleasures with the apparent disregard of the impending danger, and when the calamity came upon them with resistless might they made the same despairing imporations to the divine powers for help.

Thus it goes through the centuries. When the volcano shall have spent its force and the lava shall cease to flow the landscape will smile anew, and the peasant will again plant his vine along the mountain slope. Visitors will once more climb to the summit of the peak, and from the observatory erected in the interest of science curiously gaze into the open mouth of the fiery crater until warned of a new eruption and a new catastrophe to the careless dwellers in the valley below.

Coming: Two cent fare.

AUGUST 2—There was quite a row at the toll house in the Penns Valley Narrows, Thursday of last week, when an effort was made to eject Joseph Holloway, the toll gate keeper. Mr. Holloway had eighteen woodsmen around and ready for a fray, but J. C. Motz, who had a band of seventeen men from Millheim, among them John Stoner and William Moyer, did not make his attack until the woodsmen had left early in the morning to prepare for the day's work. During the early hours when "General" Motz and his band made the attack on the fort it contained only four occupants—Holloway, his wife and two others. Revolvers, rifles and clubs were used on both sides, Mrs. Holloway using an axe handle to enforce her part of the argument. During the affray, Wm. Moyer was shot in the back of the head by an accidental discharge of a revolver in the hands of one of his company. The wound was not a dangerous one. Besides this there were bruised heads, blue shins, and bloody faces. General Holloway was defeated, and will carry his case to court.

AUGUST 9—The turntable intended for Spring Mills was destroyed, while aboard a car in Pittsburg, by the strikers.

Major J. B. Fisher had his grist mill at Farmers Mills refitted throughout with new machinery.

Evans, Rearick, Penler and Jamison as train agents. The second train was under the control of William Wolf, with Messrs. Jacob Harpster, Andrew Gregg and B. D. Brisbin, as train agents.

REV. ROB. B. WOLF, KANSAS CITY, KAS.

If in every section of this country States would turn out as many ministers of the gospel, in proportion to its population, as Potter township has,—and good ones, too,—there would certainly be no need for the present urgent call, coming from all denominations, for more preachers. It is a matter of considerable note that a township with no educational or literary opportunities higher than that afforded by public school and academic instruction should send out as many young men into the ministry and the various professions of higher learning as Potter township has done. Having no cities or large towns in or near, with the superior literary advantages of lectures, free libraries, the advantage of hearing and seeing the productions of the greatest minds as they are reproduced and represented on the stage; lacking, indeed, many intellectual opportunities so amply provided for in many places elsewhere, yet Potter township measures up to, and even beyond the average, in furnishing its quota of men in the so-called higher walks of life.

Rev. Wolf was born in the borough of Centre Hall in 1870. His parents were Simon S. and Carrie E. Wolf. His father having died while Robert was yet a child, he, at the age of ten years, was sent to the Soldier's Orphan school, at Loysville. After spending six years at this school he entered the preparatory department of Gettysburg College. Having completed the college course, he entered the Theological school of the Lutheran church at the same place, from which institution he graduated at the age of twenty-four.

His first charge after entering the ministry was at Eureka, Kansas, where he remained eight years and three months. In November, 1902, he organized a new congregation in Kansas City, Kas. This mission congregation, though of humble beginning, has, since its organization, under the sincere spiritual, and prudent business management of its pastor, proved remarkably successful. At present it has a membership of over sixty zealous church workers, and owns church property valued at more than twelve thousand dollars.

As a minister Rev. Wolf has not only met with much success in his congregational work, but is looked upon by the Synod of which he is a member as a most active and zealous church worker, of high moral and spiritual ideals, and a young man of great promise. He has twice represented the state of his adoption as a delegate to the General Synod, and is at the present time president of the Synod of Kansas, one of the largest district Synods of the General Synod.

Mr. Wolf was married in June of 1900 to Miss Aimee Wakefield, of Eureka, Kansas. They have one child, a boy four years old.

Robert Wolf is one of the younger of the men who have gone out from Potter township, a credit to the place of his nativity. Being yet a young man he has before him the prospect of many years of usefulness, which, if he continues to employ as he has the past years, the world will be better by his having lived in it.

STUART M. LEITZELL, WASHINGTON, D. C.

There is scarcely an occupation, industry or employment in which Potter township is not represented by one or more of the young men who have gone hence. Farmers, clerks, mechanics, machinists, engineers, lawyers, doctors, ministers of the gospel, government employes are only some of the vocations represented, the subject of this sketch belonging to the last in the list given.

Mr. Leitzel was born at Sinking Creek Mills (Stone Mill) in December, 1857. After finishing his school work in various public schools of the township he attended school two successive terms at Selinsgrove Missionary Institute and Penn Hall Academy.

Having determined upon a course of higher education, he entered the preparatory department of the State College in the fall of 1874. The following fall he entered the college, from which institution he graduated in 1879.

He did not take up immediately after graduation the work for which his college course especially qualified him, but for two years engaged in the hotel business at Reedsville, Mifflin county. Considering himself qualified to pursue a vocation of a more literary cast, he enlisted in January, 1882, in the U. S. Signal Corps (Weather Service). During the six months following he was assigned to Fort Meyer, Va., for special instruction in the work of the department.

For the three years following this he was assigned for duty in the Signal Service successively at Colorado Springs and on the summit of Pikes Peak, Colorado; Cincinnati, Ohio; Montgomery, Ala.; Memphis, Tenn.; Little Rock, Ark.

In 1885 he was assigned to duty in the office of the Chief Signal Service at Washington, D. C. Here he remained until 1888 when he was discharged from the Signal Corps, by act of Congress, and employed as clerk, under Civil Service rules, in the same office.

When, in 1891, Congress instituted the Weather Bureau and assigned it to the Department of Agriculture, he was transferred to the Weather Bureau, in which service he remained until August 15, 1897. At this time he was transferred to the Civil Service commission where he is still employed.

In April of 1886 he was married to Miss Cora Biganess, of Chicago. They have two children, the older of whom, Frank O., is at present a junior at Pennsylvania State College.

That Mr. Leitzel is well qualified for the work in which he is engaged, and that his services are highly satisfactory is shown by the fact of his long and continuous employment in the national department.

BROAD STREET THEATRE, PHILA.

Charles Richman in the Famous Hunting Play "Gallops."

Mr. Charles Richman is at the Broad Street Theatre, Philadelphia, this and next week, in his new comedy called "Gallops," by David Gray, which has been most successfully presented in New York City at the Garrick Theatre for a three months' engagement. In the role of "Jack Heminway," Mr. Richman is said to have a part that fits him well. The comedy is in four acts with the scenes laid in and about the Meadow Brook Hunt Club, Long Island and the story deals with the racing of the stables of society folk. The dialogue of "Gallops" is said to sparkle with wit and epigram. An outline of the story is as follows: "Jack" Heminway, gentleman good fellow, finds himself masquerading under false colors in the midst of a rabid hunting colony on Long Island. Everybody supposes him to be the great "Jack" Heminway of steeplechase fame. In point of fact, he is only a cousin of the great rider, and has himself lost his nerve through a terrible accident in California. Of course there is the inevitable girl who "loves a reckless rider," and to whom the masquerader must in honor bound unmask. But to prove his courage in the face of the insults of the "other" man, Heminway insists upon riding the great race just at hand. He does so, and saves his rival's life at a nasty jump only to be accused by the latter of fouling. The girl has her moment of doubt. But a trusty groom who happened to be near the fatal fence sets everything right, and the ungrateful villian takes himself and his broken collarbone into the night, while the hunt ball goes happily on. The audience sees the race itself through the eyes of an excited group on top of a drag. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday during the engagement.

Up to date the following Republicans have publicly announced that they want an office:

For Congress—John G. Love, Bellefonte.

For delegate to State Convention—S. H. Wegton, J. W. Dunwiddie, Philipsburg.

A CABBAGE STORY.

A Pennsylvanian in Ohio Raising Cabbage for Kraut in Large Quantities.

One of the most important industries in Greenspring, Ohio, is a Kraut factory erected by some of the moneyed men of that community, and among the stockholders and cabbage growers is Albert Hessick, formerly of Potter township. Mr. Hessick owns and conducts a fine farm near Greenspring, and being convinced as to the advantages of a Kraut factory in his neighborhood took a good block of stock and began raising cabbage on an extensive scale. Last season he raised one hundred and sixty tons of cabbage, which he sold at the rate of $13.00 per ton, or $2080.00.

The total amount purchased at this factory was 5,156 tons, or 10,312,000 pounds. Of this amount there was cut into kraut 5,825,500 pounds, making 225 car loads. Aside from this 148 car loads of cabbage were loaded direct from the farmers' wagons and shipped to various markets.

The price received during last season was very good, the lowest being $4 00 per ton, and the highest $13.00.

What Does it Mean?

The Watchman makes the above inquiry and says: Residents along Bald Eagle valley are busy these days wondering what a large corps of engineers are so busy running lines eastward through the valley for. They are in charge of a veteran civil engineer who has never a word to say about what they are doing or who it is being done for. But the work is going on nevertheless and all manner of speculation is rife. Some think it is a plan to double track and secure a new grade for the Bald Eagle valley, others say it is part of a Wabash plan, a few have connected it with the scheme for Philadelphia and Western that was spoken of so much in the Philadelphia papers not long ago.

Whatever it may be for the engineers are working on an old survey made many years ago. They started in about the old Baird tannery in Milesburg and are running east along the old tow path to the vicinity of Curtins Works where they have crossed over to the north side of the valley and are working on towards Lock Haven.

The New Sheep Law.

The attention of justices of the peace has been called to a law passed during the last session of the legislature and providing how sheep claims shall be presented to the commissioners and paid. Up to this time the claims already filed under the act will be paid, but in the future no claims will be accepted unless prepared according to the latter law which among other things provides that no person shall receive an order for any claim until he or she has been qualified, according to law, before said justice of the peace, magistrate or alderman before whom claim was made, that due diligence was made to ascertain whose dog or dogs did such damage, and that the carcasses of the sheep killed and for which damages have been assessed, were buried within twenty-four hours after the assessment of damages by the auditors aforesaid; provided further, that owners of sheep killed by dogs shall be paid fifty cents each for burial of sheep killed and add amount for burials as provided.

Naming the Baby.

It is reported to this office that local registrars of vital statistics insist that the baby must be named immediately upon its birth. This is an error. The rules of the health commissioner, who is the head of the health department under which the registrars work, have made special provision for naming the baby. The birth must be reported, regardless as to whether the infant has been named, and according to the commissioner's rule the name may be given to the registrar at a later date. The parents have the privilege of naming the baby at their leisure.

LOCALS.

Easter Day was a mixture of sunshine and "shadow". The air was cool.

The telephone line between Centre Hall and Linden Hall is almost ready for erection.

G. W. Oster, of Osterburg, was nominated for assembly by the Republicans of Bedford county. He is prominent in Grange circles.

George Boozer, son of D. A. Boozer, who had been ill for the past two weeks or more is improving. His ailment was akin to rheumatism, although he is but a lad of about eight years of age.

B. Frank Boal and sister, Miss Emily Boal, of Altoona, came to Tusseyville to visit their parents last week. Mr. Boal returned to Altoona Tuesday, but Miss Boal will remain at the parental home for a short time.

And now the old rake is hunted up. Its application has a wonderful effect—for the good—on the appearance of the house yard and lawn.

The grain and grass fields look unusually promising. While the April rains have retarded farm work, they have been very beneficial to these crops.

From the Mifflinburg Telegraph: Mrs. Samuel Condo, of Spring Mills, was this week the pleasing guest of her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. O. Heiter, on Chestnut street.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Swartz, of Pleasant Gap, are mourning the death of their young son, Andrew, who died Thursday morning of last week. Inflammatory rheumatism superinduced by an attack of the measles was the cause of death.

A number of the members of the order of Odd Fellows cut down the trees on the lots recently purchased by them and hauled the timber to the saw mill of Brisbin & Co. "Witmer's Woods," an old landmark, will now appear only in history.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Goodhart, of Altoona, visited the former's mother, Mrs. Mary J. Goodhart, in this place, returning to their home Monday. Mr. Goodhart is a railroad engineer, his run being on the Cambria and Clearfield division of the Pennsylvania system.

A central station for wireless telegraphy will be established in Pittsburgh and there will be ten stations, one of which will be in Altoona, within radius of two hundred miles of that city, from which messages in the course of time will be flashed to any part of the country.

Alfred P. Krape, of Centre Hall, recently received notice of the death of Henry M. Smith, of Rochester, Indiana, at the age of seventy years. Mr. Smith was a native of Laurelton, but was well known throughout Penns Valley by the older inhabitants. Forty or more years ago, he and Alfred Diehl traveled this valley repeatedly with threshers and clover hullers. Later he went to Savannah, Missouri, engaged in farming, and like many Pennsylvanians, in the west, accumulated considerable wealth. He was a brother of Samuel Smith, who died on the Stump farm, east of Centre Hall. Jerry D. Smith, of Rochester, Indiana, survives, as do also two sisters—Mrs. Albert Heighway, also of Rochester; and Mrs. Joseph Welcher, of Macy, Indiana.

SIX MEET DEATH ON KEARSARGE

The Powder in Big Warship's Turret Ignites.

TWO OFFICERS AMONG THE KILLED.

Disaster Occurs Just After Target Practice on the Battleship in Caribbean Sea—Several Bags of a Thirteen-inch Gun Charge of Powder Explode While Being Moved Below from the Forward Turret.

Washington, D. C. (Special).—News of a disastrous explosion upon the battleship Kearsarge, while at target practice near the Guantanamo station, created consternation at the navy department.

Just two years ago to the day the explosion of a 13-inch gun on the battleship Missouri, while at target practice off Pensacola, Fla., caused the loss of five officers and twenty-six seamen.

The receipt of intelligence found the secretary of the navy out of the city and President Roosevelt assisting in the laying of the cornerstone for the office building of the House of Representatives.

The news was conveyed to the bureau of navigation in the following message from Commander Winslow:

"On April 13, about 3.15 P. M., shortly after completion target practice of Kearsarge, forward turret while the powder was going below, three sections of a thirteen-inch charge were ignited. Charge of powder in other lift just below and one section inside thirteen-inch remained intact. Cause not yet determined.

"Matter is being investigated.

"Lieut. Joseph W. Graeme, gun umpire, sent to the Maryland in a very critical state about 9 P. M.

"The following have since died:

"Lieutenant Hudgins, turret officer.

"Peter Norberg, gunner's mate.

"Theodore Naegley, seaman.

"Anthon C. Thorson, ordinary seaman.

"Julius A. Koester, turret captain, first-class.

"Ellis H. Athey, seaman.

"Following dangerously injured by accident, recovery doubtful:

"W. King, ordinary seaman.

"Will bury dead at Guantanamo.

"Vessel uninjured."

The translated copy of the cablegram from Captain Winslow was laid before the President. He directed that a message of condolence be sent at once. In accordance with these instructions, Assistant Secretary Newberry sent the following to Rear Admiral Evans, in command of the fleet:

"The department is deeply grieved by the unfortunate accident on board the Kearsarge which occasioned the death and injury in the performance of duty of brave officers and men in the navy, and it extends its heartfelt sympathy to the injured and wishes for a speedy recovery from their wounds. Spare no effort to ease the sufferings of the injured in every possible manner and show every honor to the dead. NEWBERRY."

The department recognizes Captain Winslow as a careful officer, but it will demand that a most exhaustive inquiry be made with a view of ascertaining the cause and providing means to prevent a repetition of explosions on American battleships.

The department is at a loss to understand how the powder should have been discharged after the practice had been concluded.

State Militia on Guard.

Springfield, Mo., (Special).—State militia, reinforced by 200 deputy sheriffs, guard the streets of Springfield against possible renewed action by a mob that during Saturday night lynched three negroes in the public square. There are hundreds of strangers in Springfield, and the anti-negro feeling still runs high.

Although no untoward move was made during the day, many threats were heard, and Sheriff Horner, fearing a fresh outbreak when darkness should fall, telegraphed Governor Folk early in the day for aid. The Governor responded promptly, and within a few hours six companies of militia were on the way to Springfield from various parts of Missouri.

Religious War in Poland.

London (Special).—The correspondent at Warsaw of the Chronicle reports that the conflict between the Mariavite sect and the Orthodox Catholics is increasing in intensity. A pitched battle in which 3,000 persons participated occurred on Friday in the environs of Warsaw, resulting in two Catholics being killed and 30 wounded. Grave fears are entertained of disturbances during the Easter fetes.

Six Killed By Tornado.

Dallas, Texas, (Special).—It is reported that six persons were killed and several injured in the tornado which swept over Briggs, Texas. A number of buildings in the district were destroyed. At Union Pacific headquarters the storm was reported more severe in the vicinity of Julesburg, Col., where the wind reached a rate of 60 miles an hour, with a heavy snow falling.

Savannah, Ga., (Special).—Benjamin D. Greene and John F. Gaynor were found guilty in the federal court of conspiracy against the government. The defendants were found guilty, with no recommendation, upon each of the indictments. The verdict was returned a few minutes before 2 o'clock, after the jury had been out three hours and a half.

There was silence in the courtroom as Judge Speer asked the jury if they had agreed upon a verdict. Foreman Hope Thomas answered in the affirmative, and the three indictments were taken up and the findings read by the clerk. The jury, at the request of the counsel for the defense, was then polled, and each member stated that the verdicts rendered upon the indictments were his.

The maximum sentence that the court may impose under the law is an aggregate term of 17 years in the penitentiary and a fine of $575,000, the amount of the alleged embezzlement. Before adjournment Judge Speer said:

"I have no disposition toward these unfortunate men except to be just as merciful as my duty under the law will permit."

The minimum sentence permissible under the law is two years in the penitentiary and a fine of $1,000.

The defence's counsel will not discuss the next steps to be taken in the case, nor will District Attorney Marion Erwin say what will be done regarding the indictments against Oberlin M. Carter, Michael A. Connolly, William T. and Edward F. Gaynor, who were jointly indicted with the defendants convicted.

Mr. Erwin received a telegram from Attorney General Moody expressing the congratulations of the President and the Attorney General upon the outcome of the case, upon which Mr. Erwin has been engaged for seven years.

AN EMPEROR'S HUMILITY.

Francis Joseph Washes the Feet of Twelve Aged Men.

Vienna, (By Cable).—Emperor Francis Joseph, as usual, carried out the anceint ceremony of Maundy Thursday by washing the feet of 12 aged men, who were on this occasion all nonagenerians, their united ages being 1,096 year. The ceremony took place in the large hall of the Hofburg before a large gathering of archdukes, diplomats and state officials. The American Embassy was represented by Francis G. London. second secretary o fthe embassy, and Mrs. London.

Before abluting the feet of the 12 old men the Emperor, assisted by the archdukes, personally served them with an elaborate repast of several courses, which, however, was not eaten immediately, but was sent to their homes.

After the ceremony was concluded there was a bestowal of silk purses containing 30 silver pieces, which the Emperor hung around the neck of each of the old men.

A Plucky Preacher.

Dallas, Texas, (Special).—"Not on your life" was the response made by Dr. J. L. Brooks, of Washington, D. C., when invited by a highwayman to hold up his hands. Suiting the action to the words, Dr. Brooks knocked down the man, and then turned to the man's companion, who was unarmed. The latter ran away. The man with the pistol snapped it twice at Dr. Brooks, and then ran off, too. Dr. Brooks chased them four or five blocks, and then notified the police. Dr. Brooks is a Methodist minister, and is attending the Methodist Educational Convention of Texas.

War on Mosquitoes.

Tampa, Fla., (Special).—At a meeting of the authorities of Tampa, West Tampa, Fort Brooke, Port Tampa City and the county of Hillsborough at the board of trade rooms, steps were taken toward organizing a municipal sanitary league of Florida, one of the main objects of which is to wage war on mosquitoes. Dr. L. W. Weedon, of this city, was elected temporary president. A call will be issued to the authorities of other cities to meet here at an early date and form a permanent organization.

LIVE WASHINGTON AFFAIRS.

Elect Senators By Popular Vote.

A resolution providing for the election of senators by direct vote of the people has been favorably acted upon by the House Committee on Election of President, Vice President and Representatives in Congress. The resolution, which was introduced by Mr. Norris, of Nebraska, makes the term of members of the House four years instead of two. Both propositions are to be accomplished by amendments to the Constitution.

Reasons why the term of members should be four years are stated to be because no party can inauguarate its policy in two years.

"The people are tired," the report says, "of this continuous drama and as a result are inclined to give no attention to the primaries and the conventions—the very foundation of our political system—the forum wherein the country's interests can best be guarded and protected.

"With an election every two years the political grafter who thrives on partisan strife and on the nervous uncertainty controlling candidates for office is able to live from one election to another by the boodle secured at his unholy business. The adoption of the proposed amendment would render it less possible for this creature to ply his trade."

Regarding the election of senators by direct vote the report says:

"The proposition to provide for the election of senators by the direct vote of the people has been before the House of Representatives and has received favorable consideration upon several different occasions. A proposition to amend the Constitution having this object in view has passed the House of Representat four different times, and each time by a practically unanimous vote."

ent times, and each time by a practically unanimous vote."

President May Go West.

It was stated at the White House that President Roosevelt has taken up the question of a trip through the West during the spring or summer of 1907, although as yet he has not made any positive engagement, and, in fact, has not reached any positive conclusions. The intimation is that he is very likely to make such a trip. He has received a number of invitations from institutions and cities throughout the West to visit them, to all of which he has replied that he will take them under consideration. He expects to reach a conclusion before a great while.

The President has tentatively agreed to attend the commencement exercises of the Missouri Agricutural College at Columbus, Mo., on the 5th of June, 1907, and he was invited to be present at the ceremonies incident to the semicentennial celebration of the founding of the Michigan Agricultural College at Lansing. The celebration will be held just before or just after the commencement of the Missouri College, to suit the convenience of the President. The invitation was extended by Governor Warner, Representative Sam W. Smith and Deputy Food Commissioner Colon Lillie, of Michigan. The President could not say definitely whether he would accept the invitation or not, but he held out the hope to his callers that he might.

The Czar Is Willing.

Baron Rosen, the Russian ambassador, called upon Secretary Root at the State Department and advised him that the Russian government was entirely willing to have the meeting of the second Hague conference postponed. It was stated that the Russian government in naming July as a suitable time for the conference had only in mind what it conceived to be the convenience of the Netherlands government and of all concerned. However, upon learning that the date would be inconvenient to the United States and other countries and after consultation with the government of the Netherlands and learning that that government could accommodate the conference at another date, it was deemed best to accede to the general wish of the powers and allow the postponement of the conference to a date to be selected in the future by agreement.

Trouble With the Indians.

At the instance of the Department of the Interior the War Department has taken steps to send whatever military force may be necessary to protect the Indian agent, Major O. C. Edwards, on the Umatilla agency in Oregon, from the Indians, who have threatened to do him bodily harm. Orders were sent to Brigadier General Constant Williams in command at Vancouver Barracks, to send a reliable officer to Pendleton to investigate conditions at the agency, and, if need be, to send one or two troops of cavalry from the agency at Fort Walla Walla.

A Big Hall For Washington.

Senators Dillingham and Long, as a subcommittee of the Committee on the District of Columbia, heard prominent citizens in favor of the application of the Washington Auditorium Company for charter, exemption from taxation and certain other favors under the District of Columbia code. This company purposes to use the ironwork of the government building at the World's Fair at St. Louis and construct an immense amphitheater in which to hold inaugural ceremonies and similar great gatherings of a national character.

A WOMAN'S LONG TRIP IN BALLOON

Up Two Hours; Lost in Clouds Crossing Mountains.

SHE HAD THE TIME OF HER LIFE.

Wife of Dr. Julian P. Thomas, With Husband and Pilot, Sails From Massachusetts Into Connecticut—Kissed Child Good-by and Tossed Flowers to Crowd—Snapped Camera as Balloon Shot Skyward.

Pittsfield, Mass., (Special).—At 3.25 o'clock P. M., the big French balloon Orient, with Dr. and Mrs. Julian P. Thomas, of New York, as voyagers and Charles Levee, the French aeronaut, as pilot, went up from the balloon field in this city followed by the cheers of the thousand onlookers. It was a perfect start. The day was damp and chilly, and the skies were overcast with low-hanging clouds. The fact that Mrs. Thomas was to undertake the voyage had attracted the widest interest. She was on the balloon field early, notwithstanding that the party which came to Pittsfield for the flight did not arrive until 2 o'clock because of delays en route. Her costume was that of a woman out for a shopping trip, a street dress of light check, with a natty spring hat of blue-gray with wings. She wore a rich cream lace waist, and white suede gloves. Over all she wore a long automobile coat, with hood.

Cheers that echoed throughout the locality greeted the daring woman as she nodded in response to Levee's announcement that he was ready. She kissed her hand to her brother, Walter Eberhart, of New York, and Dr. and Mrs. W. R. C. Latson, of Brooklyn, who had come up to Pittsfield to witness the start. Her seven-year-old son Ollin, who came to witness his parents take their initial flight in a balloon, was held up to the car. Mrs. Thomas held the little fellow for a moment up to her, kissed him twice and handed him down to his governess. There was not a tremor of fear, not a semblance of nervousness in her demeanor.

She took up a great box containing hundreds of violets and began to toss them to the crowd which had thronged about the basket. The crush of the spectators for the souvenirs startled Levee, and he signalled to the police to disperse the men who were scrambling dangerously near the baloon for the flowers. Ten strapping workmen, grasping the wicker basket, carried the car and the balloon a distance from the works, then, at a word of command from Levee, all hands let go and the balloon shot upwards. Mrs. Thomas waved her handkerchief, then she took up a small camera and began taking snapshots at the multitude below. Dr. Thomas took out his American flag, with which he had saved the Orient from a mob at Glendale, Long Island, and waved it vigorously. Levee doffed his cap again and again to the cheering mass.

"Bon voyage!" "Good luck!" "Bravo!" were sent after the balloon by friends of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas. "Good-by, good-by!" Mrs. Thomas kept repeating as long as her voice could be heard. So long as the eye could follow the flight she was standing erect, waving her handkerchief. The balloon did not immediately take a high altitude. It seemed to rise and drift slowly, and for miles its altitude was not more than 300 meters. As it passed up the ridge pole of the Hoosac Mountains, which shut out the eastern horizon, the altitude did not appear to be great, and at 4 o'clock the balloon was lost in the clouds.

The balloon came down on the Connecticut farm of B. F. Kinney at 6.30 P. M. The landing was made easily in meadow land. The party of three made their way to the farmhouse, and later in the evening were driven to Somers by M. Kinney, where they took the trolley for Springfield on their way back to Pittsfield.

Typhoid In Pittsburg.

Mount Vernon, N. Y. (Special).—Jas. A. Bailey, the showman, proprietor of Barnum & Bailey's circus, died at his home, the Knolls, Cocoran Manor, Mount Vernon, at 5.20 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from erysipelas. Mr. Bailey was taken ill last Thursday night after returning from Madison Square Garden and suffered such intense pain that his brother-in-law, Dr. W. F. Harper, of New York City, who has been the family physician for years, was sent for at once and was in constant attendance to the end.

More Carnegie Blast Furnaces.

Pittsburg, Pa. (Special).—Fifty-eight cases of typhoid fever were reported to the Bureau of Health Wednesday. These are new cases that have developed within the past 24 hours. A new and more serious phase has come over the situation in the reports from the various schools about the city. At present there are about 1,000 pupils absent from school because of illness, and a great many of them are suffering from typhoid fever. The city superintendent of schools, Samuel Andrews, attributed these cases to the unfiltered city water supplied to the schools.

Showman J. A. Bailey Dead.

Pittsburg, Pa., (Special).—Contracts have been awarded by the Carnegie Steel Company for the construction of two large blast furnaces at Rankin, Pa., at a cost of $2,000,000. The furnaces will be 100 feet high and 23 feet in diameter at the bosh, and will have a rated capacity of 500 or 600 tons a day. Efforts will be made to have them ready for blast by January 1 next year.

Pensions For Professors' Widows.

New York, (Special).—Announcement that the widows of college professors many be pensioned under the terms of the $10,000,000 gift of Andrew Carnegie to the Carnegie Foundation was made by the trustees of the foundation. A pension not to exceed one-half the pension of a professor, may be paid to his widow, but it will be required that she must have been the wife of a professor during 10 years of his active service. The pension is to cease on her remarriage.

GIVE UP HOPE OF SETTLEMENT.

The Miners Are Settling Down For a Long Strik.

Philadelphia, Pa., (Special).—There was but little hope for industrial peace in the anthracite region Friday among the men most interested in the coal situation. One and all seemed convinced that nothing short of an unexpected intervention of some sort can now prevent a coal strike, or rather can prevent the declaration on the part of the coming mineworkers' convention that a strike exists.

It is regarded as settled according to the general belief in the region that the mine operators have gone as far as they will go.

Tamaqua, Pa., (Special).—The Southern anthracite region is settling down for a long, bitterly contested strike, all hope of peace having been abandoned. President Dettery, of the Seventh District; Vice President Matti and National Organizer Gildot, all members of the scale committee, returned home. They all express the belief that the die has been cast and that there will be a strike.

At all the collieries of the Philadelphia and Reading preparations are being made to accommodate a large force of nonunion men. These men will be used chiefly as guards. It is understood that the plan of the operators will be to concentrate all the practical men possible—fire bosses, foremen, engineers, draftsmen and other men who have a practical idea of mining and of operating on a breaker at certain plants and working them.

It is contended by the operators that if they do this they will be able to ship considerable coal to market—sufficient, they assert, to meet the normal summer dmand.

Miners Angry With Officials.

Scranton, Pa. (Special)—District President Nicholls and Secretary Dempsey came from New York and reopened headquarters in Scranton. Mr. Nicholls would not say that there was any hope of a peaceful solution of the difficulty. He had no idea when the convention of the anthracite workers would be called, but declared that he understood that both Scranton and Wilkes-Barre wanted it.

It is expected that the first duty of Mr. Nicholls will be to quiet the criticism of a number of the miners who are greatly incensed because the holding of the convention has been put off for another week or two, during which they must remain idle and not make a dollar. Already many of the mineworkers are feeling themselves pinched, having missed one payday.

In the meantime there is a show of partial resumption at different mines of the local companies. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Company officials say they have men at work in the Bellevue, Cayuga, Brisbin, Diamond, Storrs, Hampton and Truesdale collieries. They also say that their washeries are running almost to their full capacity. The Erie Company is operating the Barnum, at Pittsburg, and No. 5, at Dunmore, again.

There is no change in the situation so far as the Delaware and Hudson, Temple Iron and Scranton Coal Companies are concerned. One operator said this afternoon that in his opinion a strike is certain now.

CARNEGIE'S GOLD IS TAINTED.

Cincinnati's Mayor Declines to Thank Millionaire.

Cincinnati, O., (Special).—There has been some comment on the fact that Mayor Dempsey does not mention the name of Andrew Carnegie in his speech accepting the new Walnut Hills branch library last week, for the building of which Carnegie contributed liberally.

"I purposely refrained from any reference to Carnegie, because I desired to be perfectly honest in the matter," said Mayor Dempsey. "I have no deep admiration for a man who has made his millions out of the sweat and blood of the toiling classes, but who attempts to atone for the oppression by giving away buildings and thus advertising himself as a philanthropist. The place his beneficence should have begun was in his workshop and the workingmen should have had the first benefit.

"In fact, I am inclined to regret that the great city of Cincinnati did not build and pay for the branch libraries instead of receiving them as charity from a man who could have no real sympathy with a city of which he knew nothing, and in which he had no interests. The fact that I did not praise Carnegie was quite deliberate. He is a creation of the system of special privileges that has enriched the few at the expense of the many, which is undemocratic and destructive.

"I am not at all in accord with his manner of making money, and scarcely more so with his method of spending it."

Mineowner Ends His Life.

Birmingham, Ala., (Special).—Paul J. Stith, president of the Stith Coal and Iron Company, committed suicide. He had just returned from a visit to his company's mines in Walker County. He drove to his home on Seventh Avenue and entering his bedroom shot himself through the heart. His family was not aware of his return until the shot was heard. Stith was formerly an official of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company.

FINANCIAL AFFAIRS.

One big firm of bankers was credited with loaning $10,000,000 at 25 per cent.

William A. Dick, of Philadelphia, paid $84,000 for a New York Stock Exchange seat.

Great Northern's gross earnings in March increased $646,766, and the gain for nine months was $5,705,455, or about 16 per cent.

The Philadelphia News Bureau has issued and will continue to issue a regular supplement each month containing railroad earnings.

Call money in New York rose to 30 per cent. last week. One large bank, however, kept loaning blocks of $50,000 at 6 per cent. The bank's representative who appeared at the exchange to make the offers was nearly mobbed by large borrowers.

SUPPOSE YOU TRY SMILING.

Your burden is heavy, I haven't a doubt,
But others have loads they must carry about,
And they are not whining.
Some people are glad if but half of the way
Lies out of the shadow, or part of the day
They see the sun shining.
Suppose you try smiling.

I know you are lonely, but other hearts ache,
And bravely refuse to be bitter or break
Because of life's sorrow.
They think of the joy in the land far away,
And hasten the slow passing hours of today
With hopes of tomorrow.
Suppose you try smiling.

This funny old world is a mirror, you know,
Turn its way with a sneer, or face of a foe,
And you will see trouble.
But meet it with laughter and looks full of cheer,
And back will come sunshine and love true and dear,
Your blessings to double.
Suppose you try smiling.

All places are open to those who are glad,
Too many lack courage, too many are sad,
Those near you need cheering.
So sing with your burden, the way is not long,
And if you look upward your heart will grow strong,
And skies will be clearing.
Suppose you try smiling.

—Youth's Companion.

ANGLING FOR A RISE.

Hilda Joicey and Amy Evershed were bosom friends, according to the standard of bosom friendship that obtains between girls in their early twenties. They made a point of seeing each other twice or thrice every day, and spent most of the remainder of the twenty-four hours in writing each other effusive notes. Neither had a secret from the other. Their whole converse, viva voce or by letter, was one perpetual interchange of mutual confidences. Had you breathed to them the hint that this excess of fondness was bound to be followed, sooner or later, by reaction—that the pace, in fact, was too warm to last—they would have resented the ridiculous suggestion with mingled indignation and amusement. And yet the reaction was even then impending; the little rift within the lute was close at hand; and—as you will probably not be surprised to hear—a man was the cause of it.

The man in question was Reginald Smart-Shryke, the eldest son of a neighboring squire, and heir to five or six thousand a year. For some years he had been friendly with both girls. But it was Hilda Joicey with whom he ultimately fell in love, to whom he proposed and by whom he was accepted.

So far all was well. Amelia Evershed betrayed no sign of jealousy. On the contrary, she congratulated her darling Hilda warmly on the engagement.

But I must get on to the little rift within the lute which I have spoken of as impending. It came about in this way: Hilda was one afternoon pouring into Amelia's receptive ear all sorts of intimate confidences in relation to her wooing by Reginald Smart-Shryke.

"And when he takes me in his arms and kisses me," she cried, "oh, Amelia, when he takes me in his arms and kisses me!"

"Is it—er—very nice, Hilda?"

"Nice? It is heavenly. He does it so beautifully—with such—such—I do not know how to express it—but there's an eloquence about it that—that—"

"Just so," Amelia nodded, knowingly. "To kiss like that isn't a thing that comes all at once, either. It wants practice. And your are very lucky, my dear girl, in possessing a lover who has had such practice, and thus acquired the art of kissing really well."

"Nonsense! You are quite in error," protested Hilda rather sharply. "I am Reggie's first love. If I were not, indeed, I should have had nothing to say to him. I am not the sort of girl, as you know very well, who cares to be one of a multitude. I must be either a man's first and only love, or nothing."

"Is that so? Well, I confess you surprise me," rejoined Amelia, raising her eyebrows. "For my part, I'd much rather be a man's last love than his first. In fact, it's only his last love that ever comes to anything. His first is usually dissipated on some impossible person. It is with them that he gets the practice and experience, by which he learns how to make love and kiss effectively, and—"

"I really think you must have gone mad, Amelia."

"Oh, nonsense. It's like golf or croquet. There's no fun in playing with a beginner to whom you yourself have to teach the rudiments of the game. Give me a man who knows as much as, or more about it, than I do!"

"And how much do you know about it, pray, considering that you never have never had any experience of a lover?" demanded Hilda, with all the superiority of an engaged girl.

Amelia Evershed smiled, enigmatically. "Oh, I know what I know," she said. "I've had my little experiences with men, in a probationary sort of way, just to keep my hand in against the time when Mr. Right (as servant-galdom styles him) comes along. Whenever an opportunity has come my way, I have seized it, and made the most of it. And I always found (which brings me back to where we started) that those men who had previous practice and experience made much the best lovers. Bumblepuppy at bridge is bad enough; but from Bumblepuppy in love-making—may the saints deliver me!

"Have I not spoken good practical sense? Would you find your Reggie's wooing so acceptable if he were not an expert at it? You know you wouldn't."

"I tell you Reggie is not an expert—he has had no previous practice in making love," exclaimed Hilda, almost crying with indignation at the idea.

"No?"

There was a note of amused incredulity in the interrogation. Moreover, brief as it was, it seemed to Hilda to be pregnant with sinister meaning.

"I don't understand you, Amelia," she flashed out. "You are hiding something from me. You know nothing against Reggie?"

"Against him? Far from it. I know nothing about that handsome and eminently agreeable young man but what is entirely to his credit. If he has practised and made himself perfect, that is all in his favor. And you, who have entered into the fruits of his practice, ought to commend him for it most of all."

"I tell you, again, he has never practised. You have no right to say such a thing. You know he hasn't, Amelia."

"Do I?"

Amelia smiled provokingly, as she uttered these two words, with the air of one who could, and she would, throw a good deal of light on the subject under discussion.

"What are you driving at, Amelia? You must tell me what you mean by these odious covert insinuations. Do you know of any girl to whom Reggie has made love before he became engaged to me? If so, who is she? I insist on a plain answer."

"Oh, nonsense, Hilda," interposed Amelia, with amused contempt. "Don't make such a ridiculous fuss about nothing. Talk about a storm in a teacup! This is a veritable hurricane in a thimble. Your Reggie has been like other young men, that's all. Leave it at that, and don't talk any more rubbish about insisting upon particulars. For one thing, I don't admit that I know any particulars. For another, if I did, I shouldn't tell tales out of school. * * * And now, let us change the subject."

But Hilda was not in a frame of mind in which she would acquiesce in being thus cavalierly put off.

"You do know something," she cried, furiously, "and you shall tell me, Amelia."

"I shan't," said Amelia Evershed, pursing up her lips, with a determined air.

"You shall—you shall, I say," ejaculated Hilda, more and more furious.

"My dear child, do keep calm. I absolutely decline to say any more about the matter. More especially as I have promised—, but there," she broke off, hastily, with some slight appearance of confusion, as though she had been almost betrayed into making an unguarded admission, "let us consider the subject finally closed."

But Hilda's keen perception, rendered keener by rabid jealousy, had not missed Amelia Evershed's hastily checked slip of the tongue, with its attendant signs of confusion, and with eyes blazing and cheeks aflame she was down on it like a thousand of bricks.

"Minx! Traitress! I see how it is. Reggie has—has—been making love to you!"

"Pshaw! What has put such a foolish notion into your head?" replied Amelia, with affected amusement at the absurd imputation.

But she avoided looking Hilda in the face as she said it, and Hilda was not slow to mark the omission.

"It is true. I can see it is true," she cried, in furious accents. "Deny it, madam, if you can."

"I am not going to stop here to be insulted in this way by any such ridiculous accusations," retorted Amelia Evershed, evidently glad of an excuse for terminating the interview. "Good-by, Hilda. When next I meet you, I hope you'll be in your right mind again."

And she took her departure.

Hilda went up to her bedroom and cried for two hours and three-quarters. But the tears brought her no relief. Tears of anger never do. Besides, while brooding thus alone, her jealous suspicions had magnified themselves to an astonishing extent.

She saw a secret understanding between her Reggie and Amelia. She saw herself betrayed, in her tenderest affections, by one whom she had supposed her most faithful and devoted friend. She saw her lover's heart stolen away from her, and her whole life laid waste and desolate by the serpentine wiles of that diabolical minx. All this she saw, and a hundred other things besides.

When Hilda came down to tea she found her brother Philip just returned from business. He saw at once by her red and swollen eyes, that something was the matter. He asked her what it was. Then out it all came. "All," do I say? Yes, far more than all.

Philip, who was a good brother, was greatly aroused and perturbed by the tale of his sister's wrongs.

"Something going on between Smart-Shryke and Amelia Evershed," he exclaimed. "Tut-tut! It—it is too outrageous. I can—can—hardly believe it either of him or of her."

"But it is true!" cried out Hilda, clenching her hands excitedly, "she as good as confessed it to me. I don't blame Reggie so much—disloyal and perfidious as he has been. It is more that snake Amelia's fault than his. She has beguiled him to his downfall, like her congenial prototype in the Garden of Eden."

Hilda had no doubt from his manner that he had gone to demand an explanation from Reginald Smart-Shryke.

It was three good hours before he came back. Hilda looked up at him anxiously.

"Well?" she inquired.

"It is all right," answered her brother, smiling.

W"hat do you mean by 'all right?'"

"I mean it is as I half suspected from the first. There has been an egregious mistake. Amelia Evershed doesn't care twopence for Smart-Shryke, and there has never been anything between them."

"Reggie has told you this?"

"No; I haven't seen Smart-Shryke. I have been to Amelia's. She has told me."

"Ah! I'm astonished at your having done that, Philip; still more at your having allowed yourself to be deceived by that minx's plausible and interested lies. For, of course, she would tell you that she was innocent. But—"

"Half a moment, Hilda. She has not only told me that she cares nothing whatever for Smart-Shryke, but she has also given me incontrovertible evidence of the fact."

"Evidence? What evidence?"

"She has promised to marry me."

* * * * * *

"Why did you make me so unhappy by all those false insinuations against Reggie?" cried Hilda Joicey at the next meeting with Amelia Evershed, shedding tears of mingled reproach and joy upon the other's bosom. "Why did you pretend that he had been making love to you? You did it in jest, I suppose—to get a rise out of me. But it was a cruel, cruel joke, oh my Amelia."

"I did it, I confess, to get a rise, but not out of you—out of some one else," said Amelia, smiling.

"Out of whom, then? I do not understand you.

"Out of that very procrastinating admirer of mine, your brother Philip," said Amelia Evershed.—Truth.

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

Esperanto, the new universal language, has been set to music.

The total area of the earth, including the polar regions, is about 1,500,000 square miles, and the total population is estimated at 1,550,000,000.

A small boy has discovered that old corks cut into cubes or bricks may be used as building material for miniature castles and fortresses. These cork bricks do not look unlike some kinds of stone.

It is claimed that a parrot for sale in London can speak 800 words distinctly, and use sentences from 20 to 30 words in length. That means more words than many human beings use or understand.

Miss May Carrington of Springfield, Mass., has broken all records for blindfold typewriting from dictation, writing 5221 words in one hour, exclusive of errors, for each of which five words were deducted.

A meteor has fallen "with a screeching sound"—so the reports say—in Michigan, and buried itself in the earth with a report which was heard at a long distance. It made a hole nearly twenty feet deep, and it is thought it pulled the hole in upon itself.

A marvelous downfall of little toads descending from the clouds has stirred a great deal of consternation in a remote region in Utah. Where the diminutive batrachians came from and for what purposes they may be utilized are puzzling questions to the rustic Mormons.

The Massachusetts fish commission has planted about 80,000,000 lobster fry this year, and if one in a hundred would reach maturity there would not be much danger of a failure of the lobster crop. The young lobsters have so many enemies, however, that the death rate among them is very high.

The law firm of Putnam & Putnam in Westfield, Mass., consists of husband and wife, Mrs. Putnam, the junior member, having been admitted to the bar last week. She is 25 years old and was married five years ago. She began the study of law three years ago out of interest in her husband's profession.

Half-Deaf People.

"If you are deaf in one ear," said the boiler-maker, "I don't care about giving you a job."

"Why?" aswed the applicant.

"Because you can't tell what direction sounds come from. Hence in a place like this you would be in great danger."

"How do you know I can't tell what direction sounds come from?" the applicant demanded.

"No person deaf in one ear," replied the boiler maker, "can do so. A mah deaf in one ear will look behind him if a gun goes off on his right. He will look up in the air if a child shrieks at his feet. He will look wildly in front of him if a locomotive whistles in his rear. A boiler shop is no place for such a man."

"I knew I was like this," said the applicant, "but I didn't know all half-deaf people were."

"They all are," said the boiler-maker, "and my shop is no place for them."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Making Stovepipes Fit.

If you should have an odd size stove, and your piping is too large for it, cut a slit about five inches up one end, lap over the ends and fasten with a brad. This is an easy, simple and very effectual manner to make the piping fit.

Grease Spots on Carpet.

These may be removed by covering with a paste made of fullers' earth and spirits of turpentine. Let the past remain on till thoroughly dry, and then brush off. If the spots are very bad, they may need to be slightly rubbed with the paste—not too hard, or the fullers' earth will be difficult to get out.

Cooking Cranberries.

Cranberries cooked in a double boiler, with no water except that in the outer vessel are superior in color and flavor to those stewed in the ordinary way. The flavor of the cranberry is greatly improved if a small piece of apple, prepared and cut in small bits, is added. The proportions should be half an apple to a quart of cranberries.

Uses of Old Gloves.

Old gloves should not be thrown away as soon as they are discarded, for they are still useful in a number of ways after they are no longer fit for wear in the street. Probably everybody understands their value as a protection for the hands in cleaning a bicycle, and most persons have a few glove fingers laid away in reserve for use in case the hand is injured, but bits of glove kid may be utilized in many fashions.

They are excellent for applying dressing to kid shoes, for making watch cases and pen wipers and for tying over the tops of bottles in travelling to keep the stopper secure. Suspenders may be mended with kid; spectacles, jewelry and the finger nails polished with it. Strips may be cut from the clean part of the wrist of mousquetaire gloves, these strips to be neatly stitched upon the edge of the collar, cuffs and belt of a tailor made gown as an appropriate finish, says Woman's Life. There is material enough in the arms of long evening gloves to make pretty little shoes for infants.

Recipes.

Spanish Omelet.—Fill a plain omelet with a dressing of one green pepper, two tomatoes, one small onion, a piece of parsley, three thin slices of fried bacon and five mushrooms chopped fine and allowed to simmer for fifteen minutes.

Pudding Sauce. — One tablespoon salt, butter size of an egg, one-half pint of sugar, grated peel and juice of one or two lemons, to suit taste; mix flour and butter together, then add sugar and lemon; then put into one-half pint boiling water, boil until it thickens, cool a little, then add well beaten egg.

Preserved Grapefruit. — Get the largest to be had—those called shaddocks are best—and take out the pulp from the half of each, but crosswise, with a spoon; squeeze the juice from the skins. To a pound of the pulp and juice add three-quarters of a pound of sugar, and bring to the boiling point. Boil twenty minutes steadily and skim; remove from the fire and seal in jars.

Stuffed Potatoes.—Cut a portion across from the top of hot, well-baked potatoes. Scoop out with a teaspoon all the interior, put into a hot bowl, add butter, hot milk, and seasoning of salt and pepper, as directed for mashed potatoes. Refill the skins, lightly piling up the mixture quite a little above the opening in a fluffy mass. Brush the top lightly with butter and place back in the oven until well browned on top. Serve standing.

Macaroni a l'Espagnole. — Make a sauce from one tablespoonful of flour, one tablespoonful of butter and one cup of stock of thin beef juice, and season with one tablespoonful of salt. In the bottom of a baking dish place one layer of cold chopped meat, one layer of boiled macaroni, a sprinkling of chili sauce and chopped onion, and continue this order until the dish is full, having the macaroni last. Pour the sauce over all and bake in a hot oven for forty minutes.—Washington Star.

French Rolls.—Three cups of sweet milk, one cup of butter and lard, mixed in equal proportions, one-half cup of good yeast, or half a cake of compressed yeast and a teaspoonful of salt. Add flour enough to make a stiff dough. Let it rise over night; in the morning add two well beaten eggs; knead thoroughly and let it rise again. With the hands make it into balls as large as an egg; then roll between the hands to make long rolls (about three inches). Place close together in even rows on well buttered pans. Cover and let them rise again, then bake in a quick oven to a delicate brown.

Hornet Chasers.

Chasing hornets is such a dangerous pastime that you may like Polly Evans to tell you of a way it can be done without fear of being stung.

Divide any number of players into two camps—the chasers and the hornets. Place a mark or target either on a fence or on top of a pole to represent a hive. Each hornet has a tennis ball with which he seeks to hit the hive, around which the chasers are grouped, armed with bats to ward off the balls.

Every ball driven back from the hive counts a point for the chasers. A ball touching the hive indirectly, even after it has been touched by a chaser, is good and counts for the hornets.

The hive is attacked and defended by the right and left hand alternately, as the umpire commands.

The side first making fifteen points wins, after which parts are changed, the hornets becoming chasers and vice versa.

This game can be played in the house by using soft balls and battledoors.

Jonas Bible Seriously Ill.

Jonas Bible, of near Potters Mills, has been seriously ill during the past week, his sickness dating back to a month ago. His affliction is peculiar, and yet supposed to be due to a parasite which works on the hairy parts of the face in adult males. The technical name of the disease is trichophytosis barbae, or sycosis. The first appearance of the disease, as stated above, was about a month ago when he shaved his chin, at which point the eruptions began to appear.

Mr. Bible's present condition is regarded very serious by his neighbors, but the likelihood is that the appearance of the ulcers is much worse than will be their consequences.

A MISSION TALK.

Mrs. Gillespie Spoke in the Presbyterian Church on the Work She Saw in Japan, China and India.

Mrs. John Gillespie's lecture on Foreign Missions in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning was a real treat to all interested in the extension of Christ's kingdom. A full house listened to her for fully an hour with unflagging interest.

Mrs. Gillespie is a refined, cultured woman, full of her subject, made unusually real to her by her association with her late husband, for several years one of the secretaries of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, and by her observations on various mission fields during her journey around the world. She is a most pleasing, forcible speaker, becoming eloquent as the grandeur of the work looms up before her.

She traced the offerings of the various churches as they went to the Board in New York and then out to the different parts of the missionary world, ninety-two cents out of every dollar actually reaching the foreign fields, eight cents on the dollar being sufficient to defray the expense of collecting, distributing and superintending in a business carried on in nearly all parts of the earth, and involving the expenditure of about one and one quarter millions of dollars, and a multitude of indescribable details. Some of New York's ablest and busiest preachers a d business men give of their time twice a month, free of all compensation, to the meetings of the Board.

The speaker took her hearers out to the foreign fields and showed them the missionaries and native teachers at work, preaching, teaching, healing and performing surgical operations. In countries like India the medical and surgical work especially seems effective in breaking down the caste spirit and the seclusion of women, which have heretofore been such great hindrances to reaching important classes of the people. Everywhere the missionaries are making converts in such numbers as to show that the old time gospel is still "the power of God unto salvation." So far from being a failure the work is growing more rapidly than the church at home is showing a willingness to support it, although the church's gifts are increasing slowly.

In the evening Mrs. Gillespie addressed the C. E. society, dwelling more particularly on the people and the work as she saw them in Japan, China and India, illustrating her talk with some curios gathered in these countries. The Presbyterians feel that Easter was a good day for them, and would be glad to have Mrs. Gillespie return. They were also glad to have with them so many from the other churches of the town.

Every rose has its thorn, and, what's more, the thorn doesn't fade.

The Philipsburg Daily Journal has this to say: W. Gross Mingle is still managing the Howard Creamery Incorporation, a position he has creditably filled since its organization six years ago. He is a very pleasant young man, and reports business as being very good. Creamery butter from this plant is always in demand.

Attorney General Carson has granted the application for a writ of quo warranto to test the constitutionality of the act of the General Assembly creating the office of State Dairy and Food Commissioner. The matter will now be brought to a test in the Courts. The doubt as to the legality of the office grows out of the provisions of the Constitution that no State office shall be created for the inspection or measuring of any commodity. It is urged on the other hand that the official test of foodstuffs is warranted under the police powers of the State and is not therefore covered by the inhibiting provision of the Constitution against State inspections or measurements. It is, as the Attorney General observes, a question of doubt that can only be judicially disposed of.

THE DISPOSAL OF SEWAGE

Sanitary Engineering Division of the Department of Health is Teaching Municipalities Efficient and Economical Methods of Drainage.

A lamentable and tremendous amount of needless suffering, sickness, expense and death annually result from the wanton pollution of the streams of Pennsylvania among those individuals dependent upon these sources of supply for drinking water. Hundreds of communities hang in the balance and at any time may have an epidemic of typhoid fever stalking through their midst and decimating their numbers. Hundreds of the young and best lives of the commonwealth are annually sacrificed to the unsanitary customs of sewage disposal. Poison material of human origin from public and private institutions, sewers and privies are emptied into streams at points but short distances above water works intakes, and in a few hours thereafter are delivered through the water pipes of public systems to many innocent and unsuspecting individuals, who rest secure in the belief that the public authorities, having in charge the furnishing of drinking water, and who are responsible for the purity of the water thus supplied, are faithfully performing their obligations.

Public and private corporations, however, even when earnestly inclined, are often limited in their powers to prevent sewage contamination of the sources of water supply.

After years of affliction, and at a terrific cost in human life, it has finally dawned upon the people that a higher authority than the municipality must grapple with the problem and afford a remedy. It is, therefore, of interest to every citizen of the commonwealth to know about the work that Health Commissioner Dixon is doing to preserve the purity of the waters of the state in fulfillment of the duty laid upon him by the act of April 22, 1905.

The enormity of the task is comprehended when one realizes the fact that almost without an exception every city, borough and municipality in Pennsylvania having a sewer system discharges its filth into the most convenient nearby stream, regardless of consequences to the user of that stream at some point below.

Further, where there are no sewers, privies are almost universally located on or near the banks of natural water courses, which thus serve as open sewers. By no known mathematics is it possible to compute the extent of evil, the misery, expense, poverty, lifelong suffering and death which this custom entails; but it is a fact that a large amount of it all would be driven from the state if sanitary methods of sewage disposal were adopted.

It is the privilege, as well as the duty, of the State Health Commissioner to bring about just this result. No short sighted, vacillating and radical policy could be successful in such a great undertaking. It will necessarily be the work of years to undo the customs of generations and establish universal healthful conditions. Its success in a measure depends upon the enlightenment and co-operation of the people. The stupidity and skepticism of a preoccupied and selfish populace is a barrier to quick results. Where the public conscience is quickened, voluntary reforms will be inaugurated and benefits will be at once secured. In other cases the law will have to be invoked and enforced.

The Chief Engineer of the Department, F. Herbert Snow, and his assistants are now traversing every part of the State, making examinations of sewerage systems and water supplies and collecting data with respect to the quality of all of the waters in Pennsylvania. More than this is being done, sources of pollution and menaces which can be abated at once are reported to the commissioner, and in many cases a request on his part to the owner of the premises is sufficient to cause a removal of the nuisance. The number of letters of encouragement and co-operation in this kind of reform received by the commissioner splendidly illustrates the willingness of the citizens of the state to do what is right. In a few cases owners wilfully refuse to do away with the causes of disease, in which event they are being brought into court or forced to comply with the law.

Another important feature of the commissioner's work is appealing to the municipalities, namely, the utilizing free of cost to them of the services of the engineering department in consultation and advice respecting the installation of new water works and sewer systems and the extensions of existsystems. This engineering service not interfere with the work of the engineer in private practice, but increases it. The state department gives free of cost the very best engineering advice procurable, which has already resulted in saving to municipalities large sums of money by obviating costly mistakes. In carrying out the general advice and suggestions of the state department, the municipalities must employ their own engineers, but before plans are finally adopted they pass for approval to the health commissioner. Dr. Dixon confidently asserts that through his engineering division he will save to the municipalities in the state hundreds of thousands of dollars, and at the same time work with the local authorities in carrying out local improvements.

THREE FACTS

For Sick Women To Consider

FIRST.—That almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful periods, displacements of the female organs, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing-down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

SECOND.—The medicine that holds the record for the largest number of absolute cures of female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates, strengthens and cures diseases of the female organism as nothing else can.

For thirty years it has been helping women to be strong, curing backache, nervousness, kidney troubles, inflammation of the female organs, weakness and displacements, regulating the periods perfectly and overcoming their pains. It has also proved itself invaluable in preparing women for childbirth and the change of life.

THIRD.—The great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women.—Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. From symptoms given, your trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Mrs. Pinkham is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years under her direction and since her decease she has been advising sick women free of charge. Out of the vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Surely, any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

TERRIBLE SCALP HUMOR.

Head Covered With Humor Sores, With Loss of Hair—Another Speedy Cure by Cuticura Remedies.

"All my life I had been troubled more or less with humor in my scalp, but about a year ago it became worse, and my scalp was covered with little sores, which itched so it nearly made me crazy; my hair also began to get dry and fall out. I tried all kinds of hair restorers with no effect, and I was nearly discouraged, but one day I was reading in a paper what the Cuticura Remedies had done for scalp diseases, and decided to make a trial. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent Pills. I used them according to directions, and soon noticed a difference; the tiny sores on my scalp began to heal, the itching stopped, and my hair began to grow thick. I have used only the one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Ointment and one vial of Pills, and now I have no humor on my scalp and my hair is soft and silky. Miss Mayzie C. Atkins, Box 32, East Orleans, Mass., Mar. 19, 1905."

Destroy the Weeds.

A single plant of the purslane weed of not unusual size is capable of producing anywhere from 400,000 to 2,000,000 seeds, so the importance of destroying these plants before they mature sufficiently to produce any seed can readily be seen.

Cultivating the Crops.

If at first the weeder was faithfully used, that will greatly help in the after work with the cultivator. Cultivators should be so gauged as to run very close to the rows of corn and practically to cover the ground.

Machines that go astride the rows will accomplish this work in a more satisfactory manner than the old fashioned cultivators. As these are furnished with teeth that run on both sides of the rows, it will be seen that in passing once over a field the spaces between the rows receive two cultivations. This work of cultivation should be continued as long as the size of the corn will permit or there is time for the work.

With the common field corn that is to be husked, there should not be too many stalks left in the hill for a development of ears, but if for fodder there may be more left to grow, but even then not too many.—E. R. Towle.

Sheep Notes.

Sheep manure is both clean and rich, making it a most desirable fertilizer to handle.

In passing the sheep the weed seed gets too discouraged to make an attempt to grow thereafter.

Keep the sheep pens well bedded, which will conserve the manure and make capital use of the straw at the same time.

Weedy pastures are said to be appetizing for sheep; if true there are portions of the northwest that would be veritable sanitariums for sheep.

The vitality of the flock is often impaired by breeding immature ewes. Many excellent breeders say the ewe should be two years old when its first lamb is dropped.

Ewes ought to be kept in medium condition. For eight or even nine months in the year they do not require oil cake or corn and the time to spend money upon them is when they are nursing.—The Epitomist.

Hop Sprouts as Vegetables.

In the early spring, when there is a great scarcity of fresh vegetables, chicory and spinach being about the only resource of the housewife, tender young hop sprouts are exposed for sale in the Brussels market, and are in great demand during the season, which lasts from March 15 to April 15. Forced hop sprouts may be had as early as March 1, but they are not as tender and succulent as sprouts cut from the foot of hop plants which have been covered with earth during the winter months. When the earth is removed the tender sprouts are cut, care being exercised to leave sufficient to form new sprouts. Hops are cultivated in various sections of Belgium, but the hop sprout culture is confined to the frontier of the Province of Brabant, touching East Flanders. During the season immense quantities of fresh hop sprouts are daily sent from this locality to all the important cities and towns in Belgium, but the greatest part of the product goes to the large canning establishments at Mollaes, where the sprouts are canned or bottled and exported, as a table delicacy, to all parts of the world.

Piano Box Poultry Houses.

I am a beginner, and write to ask if piano boxes should not make good houses for a pen of fowls, say six to eight fowls in each box. If so, how would you fix them?

Place a small window in one end of the box or at the front. Cut a door at the front or end as you choose. Nail strips to each side a foot from the floor to hold roosts. As the top is slanting, you can put hinges to it if you choose to raise up same in warm weather for ventilation and to raise clear up when you want to clean it out. Cut a hole in the back part large enough for the hens to pass through and to this put another box for the nests. Common sense will show you how the nest box should be constructed, at the back of the big box. Whitewash all inside and outside, and you have a cheap, serviceable chicken house, not large, but good for all purposes where economy is the main consideration. We have seen fowls kept in store boxes not near so large as a piano box and profitably. It is not the size of the house, but the attention given the fowls that counts in poultry culture.—The Poultry Guide.

Dairy Notes.

Do not keep a cow that tests below three percent in butter fat.

Use cooking soda to clean the milk vessels; it is better than soap.

Dairy stock cannot be improved if mixing of breeds is carelessly permitted to go on.

Salt should be always accessible.

Clean and thoroughly air stable before milking.

Keep the dairy barn well lighted.

The milk cow needs sunshine not alone for health, but to aid in the production of milk and butter fat.

Cream failing to churn is usually due to the milk coming from cows that are near the close of the period of lactation.

When butter fails to come after churning for a long time, it is a good plan to add some water to the cream, or a small quantity of salt. It helps to contract the swelling mass of cream and overcomes the viscosity which is preventing the separation of the granular butter.

Skill in the dairy is important, but the art of butter making does not depend altogether upon skill in the manipulation of the milk, cream and butter. Inferior cows that are half fed, or not feed properly, will not furnish milk of the desired quality for producing the best butter."—Agricultural Epitomist.

Swarming.

Swarming; this is the rock that wrecks the honey crop. If some one can invent a non-swarming bee or hive, his fortune is assured. We have to have the colonies strong to make lots of honey, and if they are too strong they get the swarming fever, and away goes the honey crop. What are we to do? Well, let's make up our minds to keep them from swarming, as much as we can, and do the best possible with those that swarm. I have today selected three or four of my most prolific queens, whose bees are hustlers and good workers and will raise all my young queens from these colonies.

I will work as follows: I will give them plenty of room above and below at all times, and thus keep them from swarming, and at work in the sections as long as I can, and when they do swarm, they will throw out a big one. I will set the old hive away from the old stand about two feet and facing at right angles with the old location. I will place a new hive with combs or full sheets of foundation on the old stand and hive the swarm in that. I will take off all surplus cases from the old one, and place them at once on the new hive. This gives every worker to the new swarm; for every bee that flies out will come back to the new location. If I wish to raise queens from this stock, I break up the old colony at once and make as many nucleuses out of it, as there are good queen cells available. If it is not a good desirable stock, I cut out all the queen cells and put a young queen in it. A laying queen is better, but I usually do not have enough of them to go round. Now the new swarm will go right to work and make about as much honey as if it had not swarmed. You can usually get quite a little surplus from an old one, as they very seldom cast a second swarm when treated this way, and are given a queen immediately. The new swarm has the old queen, and if you do not wish to increase she should be replaced in the ball of swarm, and the two colonies united. This gives a young queen each year and almost insures good wintering.—George W. Williams.

Poultry Notes.

Keep the fowls clean and their houses clean.

Roup is produced by a bad cold being neglected.

If eggs for hatching are desired, use two-year-old hens.

Granulated is the form in which to supply bone to poultry.

To make poultry business a success it must have attention.

It is very essential that the poultry house should be well ventilated.

Bone meal contains lime and also animal matter which is of value.

All perches should be on the same level, none higher than the others.

Some green food is indispensable to ducks after they are two weeks old.

Whole wheat is an excellent food for hens, but should not be used exclusively.

The use of food is to sustain life and maintain warmth and good condition of body.

Hens like a variety of food and it is an item to give them as much in this line as possible.

For ducklings try cornmeal and bran, equal parts, and make it into mush, with milk.

If the egg shells are fed to poultry care should always be taken to crush them well before feeding.

Rather the best way to feed corn to young chickens is to give it in a crushed or cracked condition.

When desired to fatten rapidly, there is nothing better than good cornmeal. Give all they will eat up clean.

When the chickens are off their feed and do not eat with an apparent relish, increase the exercise and change the bill of fare.

A hen pays in proportion to the number of eggs she produces; therefore, it is an item to feed so as to secure plenty of eggs.

In arranging the nests, have them arranged conveniently for the hens so that in getting in and out there will be little danger of breaking the eggs.

The Choice of Paint.

Fifty years ago a well-painted house was a rare sight; to-day an unpainted house is rarer. If people knew the real value of paint a house in need of paint would be "scarcer than hen's teeth." There was some excuse for our forefathers. Many of them lived in houses hardly worth preserving; they knew nothing about paint, except that it was pretty; and to get a house painted was a serious and costly job. The difference between their case and ours is that when they wanted paint it had to be made for them; whereas when we need paint we can go to the nearest good store and buy it, in any color or quality ready for use. We know, or ought to know by this time, that to let a house stand unpainted is most costly, while a good coat of paint, applied in season, is the best of investments. If we put off the brief visit of the painter we shall in due time have the carpenter coming to pay us a long visit at our expense. Lumber is constantly getting scarcer, dearer and poorer, while prepared paints are getting plentier, better and less expensive. It is a short-sighted plan to let the valuable lumber of our houses go to pieces for the want of paint.

For the man that needs paint there are two forms from which to choose; one is the old form, still favored by certain unprogressive painters who have not yet caught up with the times—lead and oil; the other is the ready-for-use paint found in every up-to-date store. The first must be mixed with oil, driers, turpentine and colors before it is ready for use; the other need only be stirred up in the can and it is ready to go on. To buy lead and oil, colors, etc., and mix them into a paint by hand is, in this twentieth century, about the same as refusing to ride in a trolley car because one's grandfather had to walk or ride on horseback when he wanted to go anywhere. Prepared paints have been on the market less than fifty years, but they have proved on the whole so inexpensive, so convenient and so good that the consumption to-day is something over sixty million gallons a year and still growing. Unless they had been in the main satisfactory, it stands to reason there would have been no such steady growth in their use.

Mixed paints are necessarily cheaper than paint of the hand-mixed kind, because they are made in a large way by machinery from materials bought in large quantities by the manufacturer. They are necessarily better than paints mixed by hand, because they are more finely ground and more thoroughly mixed and because there is less chance of the raw materials in them being adulterated. No painter, however careful he may be, can ever be sure that the materials he buys are not adulterated, but the large paint manufacturer does know in every case, because everything he buys goes through the chemist's hands before he accepts it.

Of course there are poor paints on the market (which are generally cheap paints). So there is poor flour, poor cloth, poor soap; but because of that do we go back to the hand-mill, the hand-loom and the soap-kettle of the backwoods? No, we use our common sense in choosing goods. We find out the reputation of the different brands of flour, cloth and soap; we take account of the standing of the dealer that handles them, we ask our neighbors. So with paint; if the manufacturer has a good reputation, if the dealer is responsible, if our neighbors have had satisfaction with it, that ought to be pretty good evidence that the paint is all right.

"Many men of many minds"—
Many paints of many kinds;

but while prepared paints may differ considerably in composition, the better grades of them all agree pretty closely in results. "All roads lead to Rome," and the paint manufacturers, starting by different paths, have all the same object—to make the best paint possible to sell for the least money and so capture and keep the trade.

There is scarcely any other article of general use on the market to-day that can be bought with anything like the assurance of getting your money's worth as the established brands of prepared paint. The paint you buy to-day may not be like a certain patent medicine, "the same as you have always bought," but if not, it will be because the manufacturer has found a way of giving you a better article for your money, and so making sure of your next order.

The Western Man.

Here is someone's conception of the western man: "He rolled the prairie up like cloth, drank Mississippi dry, put Alleghany in his hat, a steamboat in his eye, and for his breakfast, buffaloes some twenty-one did fry. He whipped the whole Comanche tribe one day before he dined, and for a walking cane he took a California pine, and when he frowned he was so black the sun it couldn't shine. He whipped a ton of grizzly bears one morning with a fan, and proved himself, by all these feats, to be—a western man."

Women who are languid, suffer backache and dizzy spells, should read carefully the experience of Mrs. Laura Sullivan, Bluff and Third Sts., Marquette, Mich., who says: "I had backache and bearing-down pain, and at times my limbs would swell to twice natural size. I could hardly get up or down stairs, and often could not get my shoes on. Beginning to use Doan's Kidney Pills I got relief before I had used half a box, but continued taking them until cured. The bloating subsided and I was well again."

COMMERCIAL

R. G. Dun & Co.'s "Weekly Review of Trade" says:

Opening of Spring trade is not perceptibly retarded by the partial interruption to coal mining, except in the immediate vicinity of the anthracite mines. High temperature not only broadens the demand for seasonable merchandise, but stimulates agricultural operations, reopens northern navigation and starts many contemplated building operations. Were it not for a few labor controversies, the commercial horizen would be cloudless. Bht some manufacturing plants will be compelled to suspend if the fuel supply is cut off, and structural work is interrupted by demands for higher wages in certain localities.

That the year 1906 started out to eclipse all records is evidenced by bank exchange, 18 per cent. larger than in the first quarter of the previous prosperous year, while liabilities of commercial failures averaged only 81 cents to each 1000 of solvent payments through the clearing houses, which is the lowest commercial death rate for the first three months of any year.

Progress in the iron and steel industry has not suffered as yet from the partial suspension of coal mining, and new business comes forward each week in great volume. Latest developments are most pronounced in the structural steel division.

Bradstreet says:

Wheat, including flour exports from the United States and Canada for the week, are 2,155,816 bushels, against 1,542,852 last week; 886,017 bushels this week last year; 1,854,000 bushels in 1904, and 2,833,285 bushels in 1903. Corn exports for the week are 3,103,586 bushels, against 2,643,479 last week; 3,366,347 a year ago; 1,028,907 bushels in 1904 and 2,654,732 in 1903.

He blushed and rose. "I guess," said he,

An Indian's Love for His Dog.

Colonel Holden of the Fort Gibson Post, who sympathizes with everybody in hard luck, printed this letter from Richard Benge, a Cherokee, whose pack of trail hounds has often made music among the Fort Gibson hills: "Will you please let me have a small space in your paper? I won't write much. I just want to tell you old 'Drum,' my good old dog, is dead. He died of I don't know what—only he just got sick and died. Poor old Drum is dead and gone where all good dogs go. Woodcock Carrying Its Young.

I was shooting snipe near Angola, N. Y., with Ralph West of that place, when the dog made a point in a bunch of popple in one corner of the snipe ground. On looking in ahead of the dog we found a nest with another young one in it.—Forest and Stream.

Wedding Finery Hard to Find.

Some of the women of Norway, Me., recently participated in a wedding gown party. All present wore wedding finery of some sort. A pair of gloves was all that one woman could muster of her one-time trousseau. Another had a pair of gownless sleeves, while still another could only find the yoke of a waist of thirty years ago. One shrewd matron borrowed an outfit from a recent bride, thus meeting the conditions.

Sues Bar Association.

Mathew E. O'Brien of Bridgeport, Conn., is making an effort to force the bar association of his county to admit him to practice, or show cause why he should not be allowed to do so. He has passed his examinations, but the bar association declined to admit him to membership. He proposes to force the issue through a bill in equity, laying stress on the fact that any other view of the matter transforms the association into a complete monopoly.

Rise Liars,

And Salute Your Queen

Ho, All Ye Faithful Followers of Ananias

GIVE EAR!

A Young Girl said to a Cooking School Teacher in New York: "If You make One Statement as False as That, All You have said about Foods is Absolutely Unreliable."

This burst of true American girl indignation was caused by the teacher saying that Grape-Nuts, the popular pre-digested food, was made of stale bread shipped in and sweetened.

The teacher colored up and changed the subject.

There is quite an assortment of traveling and stay-at-home members of the tribe of Ananias who tell their falsehoods for a variety of reasons.

In the spring it is the custom on a cattle ranch to have a "round-up," and brand the cattle, so we are going to have a "round-up," and brand these cattle and place them in their proper pastures.

FIRST PASTURE.

Cooking school teachers—this includes "teachers" who have applied to us for a weekly pay if they would say "something nice" about Grape-Nuts and Postum, and when we have declined to hire them to do this they get waspy and show their true colors.

This also includes "demonstrators" and "lecturers" sent out by a certain Sanitarium to sell foods made there, and these people instructed by the small-be-whiskered-doctor—the head of the institution—to tell these prevarications (you can speak the stronger word if you like). This same little doctor conducts a small magazine in which there is a department of "answers to correspondents," many of the questions as well as the answers being written by the aforesaid doctor.

In this column some time ago appeared the statement: "No, we cannot recommend the use of Grape-Nuts, for it is nothing but bread with glucose poured over it." Right then he showed his badge as a member of the tribe of Ananias. He may have been a member for some time before, and so he has caused these "lecturers" to descend into the ways of the tribe wherever they go.

When the young lady in New York put the "iron on" to this "teacher" and branded her right we sent $10.00 to the girl for her pluck and bravery.

SECOND PASTURE.

Editors of "Trade" papers known as grocers' papers.

Remember, we don't put the brand on all, by any means. Only those that require it. These members of the tribe have demanded that we carry advertising in their papers and when we do not consider it advisable they institute a campaign of vituperation and slander, printing from time to time manufactured slurs on Postum or Grape-Nuts. When they go far enough we set our legal force at work and hale them to the judge to answer. If the pace has been hot enough to throw some of these "cattle" over on their backs, feet tied and "bellowing," do you think we should be blamed? They gambol around with tails held high and jump stiff legged with a very "cocky" air while they have full range, but when the rope is thrown over them "it's different."

Should we untie them because they bleat soft and low? Or should we put the iron on, so that people will know the brand?

Let's keep them in this pasture, anyhow.

THIRD PASTURE.

Now we come to a frisky lot, the "Labor Union" editors. You know down in Texas a weed called "Loco" is sometimes eaten by a steer and produces a derangement of the brain that makes the steer "batty" or crazy. Many of these editors are "Locoed" from hate of anyone who will not instantly obey the "demands" of a labor union, and it is the universal habit of such writers to go straight into a system of personal vilification, manufacturing any sort of falsehood through which to vent their spleen. We assert that the common citizen has a right to live and breathe air without asking permission of the labor trust, and this has brought down on us the hate of these editors. When they go far enough with their libels, is it harsh for us to get judgment against them and have our lawyers watch for a chance to attach money due them from others? (For they are usually irresponsible).

Now let all these choice specimens take notice:

We will deposit one thousand or fifty thousand dollars to be covered by a like amount from them, or any one of them, and if there was ever one ounce of old bread or any other ingredient different than our selected wheat and barley with a little salt and yeast used in the making of Grape-Nuts, we will lose the money.

Our pure food factories are open at all times to visitors, and thousands pass through each month, inspecting every department and every process. Our factories are so clean that one could, with good relish, eat a meal from the floors.

The work people, both men and women, are of the highest grade in the State of Michigan, and according to the State labor reports, are the highest paid in the State for similar work.

Let us tell you exactly what you will see when you inspect the manufacture of Grape-Nuts. You will find tremendous elevators containing the choicest wheat and barley possible to buy. These grains are carried through long conveyers to grinding mills, and there converted into flour. Then the machines make selection of the proper quantities of this flour in the proper proportion and these parts are blended into a general flour which passes over to the big dough mixing machines, there water, salt and a little yeast are added and the dough kneaded the proper length of time.

Remember that previous to the barley having been ground it was passed through about one hundred hours of soaking in water, then placed on warm floors and slightly sprouted, developing the diastase in the barley, which changes the starch in the grain into a form of sugar.

Now after we have passed it into dough and it has been kneaded long enough, it is moulded by machinery into loaves about 18 inches long and 5 or 6 inches in diameter. It is put into this shape for convenience in second cooking.

These great loaves are sliced by machinery and the slices placed on wire trays, these trays, in turn, placed on great steel trucks, and rolled into the secondary ovens, each perhaps 75 or 80 feet long. There the food is subjected to a long, low heat and the starch which has not been heretofore transformed, is turned into a form of sugar generally known as Post Sugar. It can be seen glistening on the granules of Grape-Nuts if held toward the light, and this sugar is not poured over or put on the food as these prevaricators ignorantly assert. On the contrary the sugar exudes from the interior of each little granule during the process of manufacture, and reminds one of the little white particles of sugar that come out on the end of a hickory log after it has been sawed off and allowed to stand for a length of time.

This Post Sugar is the most digestible food known for human use. It is so perfect in its adaptability that mothers with very young infants will pour a little warm milk over two or three spoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, thus washing the sugar off from the granules and carrying it with the milk to the bottom of the dish. Then this milk charged with Post Sugar is fed to the infants, producing the most satisfactory results, for the baby has food that it can digest quickly and will go off to sleep well fed and contented.

When baby gets two or three months old it is the custom of some mothers to allow the Grape-Nuts to soak in the milk a little longer and become mushy, whereupon a little of the food can be fed in addition to the milk containing the washed off sugar.

It is by no means manufactured for a baby food, but these facts are stated as an illustration of a perfectly digestible food.

It furnishes the energy and strength for the great athletes. It is in common use by physicians in their own families and among their patients, and can be seen on the table of every first-class college in the land.

"The basis of nomenclature of this preparation is evidently an American pleasantry, since 'Grape-Nuts' is derived solely from cereals. The preparatory process undoubtedly converts the food constituents into a much more digestible condition than in the raw cereal. This is evident from the remarkable solubility of the preparation, no less than one-half of it being soluble in cold water. The soluble part contains chiefly dextrin and no starch. In appearance 'Grape-Nuts' resembles fried bread-crumbs. The grains are brown and crisp, with a pleasant taste not unlike slightly burnt malt. According to our analysis the following is the composition of 'Grape-Nuts:' Moisture, 6.02 per cent.; mineral matter, 2.01 per cent.; fat, 1.60 per cent.; proteids, 15.00 per cent.; soluble carbohydrates, etc., 49.40 per cent.; and unaltered carbohydrates (insoluble), 25.97 per cent. The features worthy of note in this analysis are the excellent proportion of proteid, mineral matters, and soluble carbohydrates per cent. The mineral matter was rich in phosphoric acid. 'Grape-Nuts' is described as a brain and nerve food, whatever that may be. Our analysis, at any rate, shows that it is a nutritive of a high order, since it contains the constituents of a complete food in very satisfactory and rich proportion and in an easily assimilable state."

An analysis made by the Canadian Government some time ago shows that Grape-Nuts contains nearly ten times the digestible elements contained in ordinary cereals, and foods, and nearly twice the amount contained in any other food analyzed.

The analysis is familiar to practically every successful physician in America and London.

We print this statement in order that the public may know the exact facts upon which we stake our honor and will back it with any amount of money that any person or corporation will put up.

We propose to follow some of these choice specimens of the tribe of Ananias.

When you hear a cooking school teacher or any other person assert that either Postum or Grape-Nuts are made of any other ingredients than those printed on the packages and as we say they are made, send us the name and address, also name of two or three witnesses, and if the evidence is clear enough to get a judgment we will right that wrong quickly.

Our business has always been conducted on as high a grade of human intelligence as we are capable of, and we propose to clear the deck of these prevaricators and liars whenever and wherever they can be found.

Attention is again called to the general and broad invitation to visitors to go through our works, where they will be shown the most minute process and device in order that they may understand how pure and clean and wholesome Grape-Nuts and Postum are.

There is an old saying among business men that there is some chance to train a fool, but there is no room for a liar, for you never can tell where you are, and we hereby serve notice on all the members of this ancient tribe of Ananias that they may follow their calling in other lines, but when they put forth their lies about Grape-Nuts and Postum, we propose to give them an opportunity to answer to the proper authorities.

The New York girl wisely said that if a person would lie about one item, it brands the whole discourse as absolutely unreliable.

Keep your iron ready and brand these "mavericks" whenever you find them running loose.

Letter to W. H. Bartholomew.

Centre Hall, Pa.

Dear Sir: Lead-and-oil is not good paint; don't wear; the rule is, as everyone knows, repaint in three years.

Devoe lasts six, in the same way—allow wide margin in all such statements. What does it mean, to last? It means the same with both.

As a covering: that's another. Here's an instance.

Mr. J. J. Hall, Sheffield, Pa., painted two houses, lead-and-oil; took forty gallons.

Last summer he bought forty gallons Devoe for the same two houses; returned ten gallons.

The paint, that covers, lasts; it's all paint, true paint, and full-measure. Lead-and-oil is all paint but not good paint; the lead wants zinc. Better paint Devoe.

Yours truly
F. W. DEVOE & CO.,

CENTRE HALL VS. SPRING MILLS.

Victory No. 1 for the Home Team—Ten Innings to Decide the Game.

The rain Saturday afternoon put a halt to almost all kinds of out-of-door-work, but had no effect on the base-ball enthusiasts. Centre Hall and Spring Mills finished out a game of ten innings in rain and mud, rather than to quit the game at a tie in the sixth inning. It was a closely contested game, in which the home team earned their runs.

The visiting team was made up of players of considerable experience, some of them having circled the diamond for a number of years in succession. They also had sufficient experience in the art to carry with them undaunted rooters in knee breeches, the captain of whom was "Woody," the proprietor of the Spring Mills hotel, who, not satisfied with his first selected position, acted as substitute for center field. He hit the ball to the pitcher, and then the seat of his pants and the home plate met. Result: Out on first. By the way, he is an old base ball player; but it is the old that is the obstacle.

There was a man in this place and he was wondrous wise, he marked a silver dollar and gave it all to Lize; she went to see the butcher and blew the dollar in—it wasn't long before the coin came back to him again. He took it to the merchant and bought a dress for Jane—before the week had finished up back came the plunk again. He spent the coin at home, fifty times or more, but always got it back again and spent it o'er and o'er; but when he sent a dollar up to Spear & Sawbuck's store 'twas gone for good—forever, and he never saw it more.

MILLHEIM DRAMATIC CLUB

Gave a Good Entertainment Saturday Night—Music Splendid.

The Millheim Dramatic Club gave a splendid entertainment in Grange Arcadia Saturday evening. The casts were made up of the following young men: George Tobias, Paul Musser, George Miller, Orvis Shull, Harry Hassinger, Thomas Frank, Harry Shires, Harry Geary, William Duck, Clyde Hartman, Dale Musser.

While credit is due each member of the club, Mr. Frank is entitled to special mention on account of the rendition of the stump speech entitled "Business."

The music throughout was above what one might expect from a local aggregation of base ball enthusiasts. The solos, quartettes and choruses were equally well rendered. The instrumental music by the Misses Grace and Mabel Auman, daughters of E. L. Auman, elicited the most hearty applause. It is not with the intent of flattery that the writer says that the Misses Auman, really only children, performed their parts on the piano in duets, solos and accompaniments, like professionals.

A continuous rain prevented many from enjoying the entertainment who otherwise would have supported the amateurs by their presence.

DEATHS.

HENRY GRESS.

Henry Gress, one of the oldest and most widely known citizens of Westmoreland county, died at his home in Pleasant Unity, near Greensburg, Wednesday, April 11.

He was born at North Washington, in the year 1818, and moved to Pleasant Unity in 1837, where he engaged in farming for almost a half century. His age was eighty-eight years.

Mr. Gress was a life-long member of the Reformed church, being the last member of a class of twenty-eight catechumens confirmed in 1838. He is survived by his widow and five children: Mrs. Florinda Bash and J. H. Gress, of Pleasant Unity; William Gress, of South Side, Pittsburg; Mrs. Sarah J. Graham, of Greensburg, and Rev. Daniel Gress, pastor of the Reformed church, Centre Hall.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon, conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. A. McClellan, assisted by the Lutheran minister, Rev. D. W. Michael.

SAMUEL HOOVER.

Samuel Hoover, one of the best known men in the upper Bald Eagle valley, died at his home at Hannah station, of rheumatism, from which he had been a sufferer for the past five years. He was born near Tyrone, lived all his life within a small radius of the place of his birth, and was sixty-eight years of age. By occupation he was a farmer and one of the most successful in that locality. He was a life-long member of the Methodist church, for years a trustee, and it was he who donated the ground on which the present church at that place now stands.

JOHN C. DUNKLE.

John C. Dunkle died at his home in Olean, N. Y., of a complication of diseases, aged sixty-seven years. He was born at Hublersburg, this county, Hannah Jane Mitchell Dunkle, his wife, having been a native of Bellefonte. Mr. Dunkle is survived by his wife, eleven children, thirty-five grand-children, two great grand-children, four brothers and one sister. Burial was made at Olean.

ROBERT I. FLEMING.

Robert I. Fleming died at Brookville, Thursday morning of last week, from an affection of the heart. He was aged sixty-nine years. During Cleveland's administration he was postmaster at Lock Haven, and was a son of the late ex-Sheriff A. S. Fleming, of Clinton county.

JAMES D. NEFF.

James D. Neff, the fifteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Neff, of Hecla, died on Tuesday of last week, of meningitis, after a brief illness.

Doyle, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes, of Walker, died of pneumonia, superinduced by an attack of the measles.

It is frequently difficult to understand why certain children whose parents are good moral people develop surprising tendencies for evil. The mystery has just been solved in the case of one boy who was apparently incorrigible. Some observing person happened to note that there was a scar on the boy's head and was curious to know how it got there. Investigation developed that some years ago the child had been struck on the head. Gradually since that time his whole character radically changed. Following up this clue, an examination was made and it developed that some pressure on the brain existed. An operation was performed with success, the brain was relieved of its incubus and the boy is now said to be exhibiting a most exemplary character. There have been other similar cases in medical practice. The fact should lead to a more careful physical examination of all children who begin to develop vicious tendencies and whose bodies, rather than their souls, are out of gear, and who should therefore receive the attention of a surgeon instead of a preacher.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparilla.

"A Yankee Circus on Mars."

On Easter Monday the third great week of the most phenomenal engagement on Philadelphia's recording books, "A Yankee Circus on Mars," at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, was ushered in with all the pomp and ceremony due to such an auspicious event. It is not unusual for an attraction to enjoy a run of two or more weeks, but it is most unusual for an entertainment to draw packed houses at every performance, especially when the large capacity of the big and popular uptown theatre is taken into consideration. Philadelphians have been "shown" and have in turn proven their appreciation of Manager Wegefarth's endeavors to produce the largest circus spectacle in the whole world by filling the spacious auditorium and balcony of his theatre at each and every performance during the past weeks.

Everything conceivable of an entertaining character has been placed on the program, from a ballet composed of four hundred charming maids to innumerable animal acts of world-wide fame. It cannot be truthfully written about; it cannot be explained; it must be seen. Every person, man, woman and child should grasp this opportunity (one, perhaps in a lifetime) to witness what the press of three great cities have universally pronounced "the world's best production." Matinees are being given daily.

Keith's Theatre.

Heading the list for Easter week at Keith's Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, is Grace Cameron, late star in "Piff, Paff, Pouf," who has just returned from European triumphs. The Pekin Zouaves are an especial feature of attraction. Others on the bill are Tom Hearn, the laziest juggler on earth; Emil Hoch, Jane Elton & Co., in "Mlle Ricci"; The Peschkoff Troupe of whirlwind dancers from Russia; Emmet Devoy & Co., in "The Saintly Mr. Billings"; The Four Avolos, xylophonists; Mlle. Mabel and her trained pets; Lew Hawkins, the "Chesterfield of Minstrelsy"; Hawthorne & Curt, Hebrew comedians.
